Aon Master Trust scores five star rating

The Aon Master Trust has been awarded the 'outstanding' five star rating from independent research firm, Heron Partnership – recognising Aon's excellence in superannuation investment, insurance, ancillary benefits and communications.

Aon's superannuation director, Steven Gaffney, said the rating recognises the great strides Aon has made in product development and client service over recent years.

"In terms of position, Aon Master Trust Personal Super was ranked 5th out of 63 and Aon Master Trust Corporate Super was ranked 9th out of 35," Gaffney said.

"This is good news for Aon and is indicative of the Aon Master Trust's high ranking in both the corporate and retail markets."

An Australian owned independent research firm, the Heron Partnership, has been assessing superannuation products in both the corporate and retail market for the last four years.

This year the firm assessed almost 100 products and focused on five key areas of importance;

- investment arrangements
- insurance
- ancillary benefits
- communications
- contributions

The Aon Master Trust currently has AUD$1.4 billion in assets, 58 000 members and more than 600 participating employers.
